

ABSTRACT

A telephone comprises a body formed of a plastic material, wherein at least part of the body includes a section formed of a transparent material. An adhesive layer is provided on the rear face of the section formed of the transparent material, and colored or lustrous fine fragments are dispersedly applied onto the adhesive layer. A painting layer is also provided on the colored or lustrous fine fragments. As to painting, metallic coating may be applied as well as regular painting.

10